The Afro-American coal heavers on Hurley's dock in Windsor got into an altercation Thursday and after the dust had settled Louis Hawkins' head was pretty well battered up. Laird of 290 Fourth avenue complained Thursday Sept. 25 at police headquarters that a shoulder cape, a black hat and a dress waist valued at $19 had been stolen from her house on Wednesday while she was absent from home. Detective Noble, white standing on the steps of the Central station Thursday afternoon noticed among the passers by a young Afro-American girl wearing articles bearing a strong resemblance to those described in the complaint. He followed her until he had satisfied himself that he was correct in his surmise, and then arrested her, when she confessed that she had been a servant in the house and had taken the goods during the absence of her mistress. She gave her name as Mary Anderson and said she had only a few days ago arrived from Chatham, Ont.

Glances Here and There.

"BEAUBIEN Street" is the appellation given to the children's ward in Grace Hospital, because its present inmates are all Afro-Americans. The Monthly Messenger, the journal devoted to the interests of Detroit's benevolent institution, gives a description of the six little waifs who are now sheltered there, and who unconsciously have provoked so much humor. It says "they are of all shades from the clear brunette to the blackest black." Grace Johnson, the first child born at the hospital, and who was christened and named in honor of it, is described as a bright little blonde, while the others, Charles Brown, Bertha Thompson and Aletha Hankins are of various shades down to the last named who it is stated is "genuine black." The Messenger graciously informs the public that Master Kelly, the only white child, is three years old and enjoys the companionship of his little playmates without regard to the color line. "In the children's ward," says the Messenger "There is always sunshine but it is on account of so much blackness in this ward at present that it has been called "Beaubien Street."

ABOUT two weeks ago the Glimmer was pained to hear of the sorrow occasioned the excellent parents of a young man in this city by his wrong doing. It is now announced that he has been compelled to leave the city for some other alleged misdemeanor. Close upon this comes the story of a number of workmen on the Jefferson avenue asphalt pavement to the effect that another young man of good parentage has raised his order from ten dollars to fourteen dollars thereby receiving a full week's pay which he was not entitled to, having quit before the week was out. The mistake was discovered almost immediately and he was compelled to refund the money and advised to leave the city or be arrested.

ALL the world has been the victim of a man who did not know when to stop. It is a difficult lesson to learn and ignorance of it has given rise to most of the ills with which humanity is afflicted. The man who cannot leave off drinking or smoking or eating receives his punishment because he suffers in person part of the misery he inflicts upon others, but what shall be said of that individual who really enjoys himself while boring you to death with long drawn yaras and prosy speeches and gathers from your forbearance fresh zeal to continue his infiction? The golden lesson of moderation is a task one learns slowly. Many an excellent sermon has been spoiled by its length, many a joke has fallen flat from the verbosity of the raconteur and many a housewife lost her temper from the visitor who outstayed her welcome. He is a wise man who knows when to stop.

THE fashionable girl may not like David hide the Word in her heart, but she certainly carries it in her walks abroad, for the latest craze is the finger bible. This is a minute edition of the scriptures recently published by the Oxford University Press, about an inch wide, three and a half inches long, printed on thin paper and weighs about an ounce. It is worn on the chapeleine, with the bonbonniere, watch and other accessories.

FOR the benefit of many tired mothers who add to their cares by the habit of tossing baby the Glimmer submits this extract from an exchange. "It is not wise to rock a baby, it is a wrong notion that eternal swaying facilities sleep. The lullaby is quite as effectual and considerably sweeter rendered in a stationary chair. In the baby hospitals, homes and asylums of New York, where thousands of little ones are reared, rocking chairs and swinging cribs are abolished on the ground of nervous disorders. The death rate is not only lower than among private nurseries, but the general health and habits of the babies are considerably better. Any one who discredits this, let him make a few observations on picnic grounds, where a part of the amusement is found in a swing. He will find that twenty-five per cent of the picnickers will not get into the swing because the oscillating motion makes them dizzy and therefore sick. If this motion makes a large girl or boy sick, what must be its effects on a delicate little baby?"

Does This Strike You?
A correspondent to the Indianapolis World hits a large number of readers of Afro-American journals thusly:

"No person should subscribe for or continue to read a paper, unless they intend to pay for it. Some people get along in this world by paying their way, while others work the "dead beat" system. Some people seem to have very little respect for their word, they tell the collector to come a certain time and when he does so, tell him to call again, while others, who have read the paper for a year make the excuse that they did not order the paper, when the collector calls. These people always have ready cash to throw away on some "fake," in which they receive no fair return, but the papers are put off. Is this fair, is it square, is it honest? Should their names be exposed, many "big" people would dwindle into microscopic smallness. The big officers dressed in the richest costumes and paraphernalia pertaining to the craft; in the "Amen" corner, and crying "amen" when the pastor discourses upon the sin of hypocrisy; and wearing a star, the badge of authority and protector of society. There would be representation in all these, if their names were published, people who impose upon Negro journals. I hope their conscience will incline them to do their duty and join in with those who so nobly assist and keep up race enterprises."

The Rev. John M. Henderson returned from Chicago Wednesday night accompanied by his wife, two children and his sister Miss Minnie Henderson.
